DAC ANNOUNCES 2017 MHSAY WINNERS

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DETROIT (May 8, 2017) – The Detroit Athletic Club (DAC)'s DAC Foundation today announced winners of the 2017 Michigan High School Athlete of the Year. Winners are Meghan Beaubien (softball) of St. Mary Catholic Central and Steven Mann (football/baseball) of Detroit Country Day School.

Sponsored by the DAC Foundation, the honors recognize both academic and athletic excellence and continue the Club's tradition of supporting athletics in the community. Awards were presented during this year's 21st Annual DAC Athletic Awards event at 6 p.m. at the DAC.

A special committee selects six female and six male high school nominees each year, and the names are announced during a breakfast reception at the Club. One female and one male student are named for the award each spring.

Other female nominees were Kierra Fletcher (basketball) of Warren Cousino High School, Alexa Hartje (tennis) of Detroit Country Day School, Taylor Manson (track) of East Lansing High School, Meredith Norris (volleyball) of Corunna High School and Taylor Seaman (swimming) of Brighton High School.

The other male finalists were Spencer Carl (swimming) of West Ottawa High School, Ben Freeman (wrestling) of Walled Lake Central High School, Noah Jacobs (cross country/track) of Corunna High School, Joshua Ross (football) of Orchard Lake St. Mary's Prep and Cody White (football/basketball) of Walled Lake Western High School.

DAC is a Platinum Club of America. Founded in 1887, the Club has welcomed world-class Olympic and amateur athletes and hosted various regional, national and international athletic competitions.
