Since 2004 Mark has been Group Chief Executive of Depaul International, which coordinates the activities of a group of Depaul charities around the world, operating in the UK, Ireland, Slovakia, Ukraine, France and the USA with plans for development in other European countries. Depaul’s services provide help for homeless and disadvantaged people of all ages. Mark joined Depaul in February 1990 as one of the first employees of the charity. In 1992 he became CEO of Depaul UK, which expanded in the next 10 years to become a national charity. At the invitation of the Irish Government, Depaul began work in the Republic of Ireland in 2002 and quickly expanded into working in Northern Ireland. Depaul International was established in 2004 to become the parent company of the Depaul group of charities, and Mark moved into the Group CEO role, overseeing its expansion into more European countries and across to the USA.

Depaul International and its subsidiaries now employ around 600 people with a budget of £23million a year helping over 20,000 homeless and disadvantaged people around the world. Since the beginning of 2016 Mark has been seconded to the Institute of Global Homelessness, an academic institute founded in a partnership between the Depaul Group and DePaul University, Chicago to challenge conventional thinking about homelessness around the world, and look for ways to reduce and end homelessness.

Charles (“Chuck”) Levesque is the Executive Director of Depaul USA, a national homeless services organization. Since joining Depaul USA in 2010, Chuck and his colleagues have overseen its expansion from a single transitional housing program for men in Philadelphia to a non-profit corporation providing an array of services including day centers, a health clinic, a medical respite, permanent supportive housing, and affordable low-income housing in six states. Depaul USA also operates three social enterprises.”
